

Canada Day in Kingston

A Little Book by Everdello

ABOUT

"Everdello" is the name of a sketching blog by Joanne Stanbridge, whose published work includes Famous Dead Canadians 1 and 2 (Scholastic Canada), The Extraordinary Music of Mr. Ives (Houghton Mifflin Harcourt), and nine other books for young readers.

Jo moved to Kingston in 1998 and works full-time as a librarian at Kingston Frontenac Public Library.

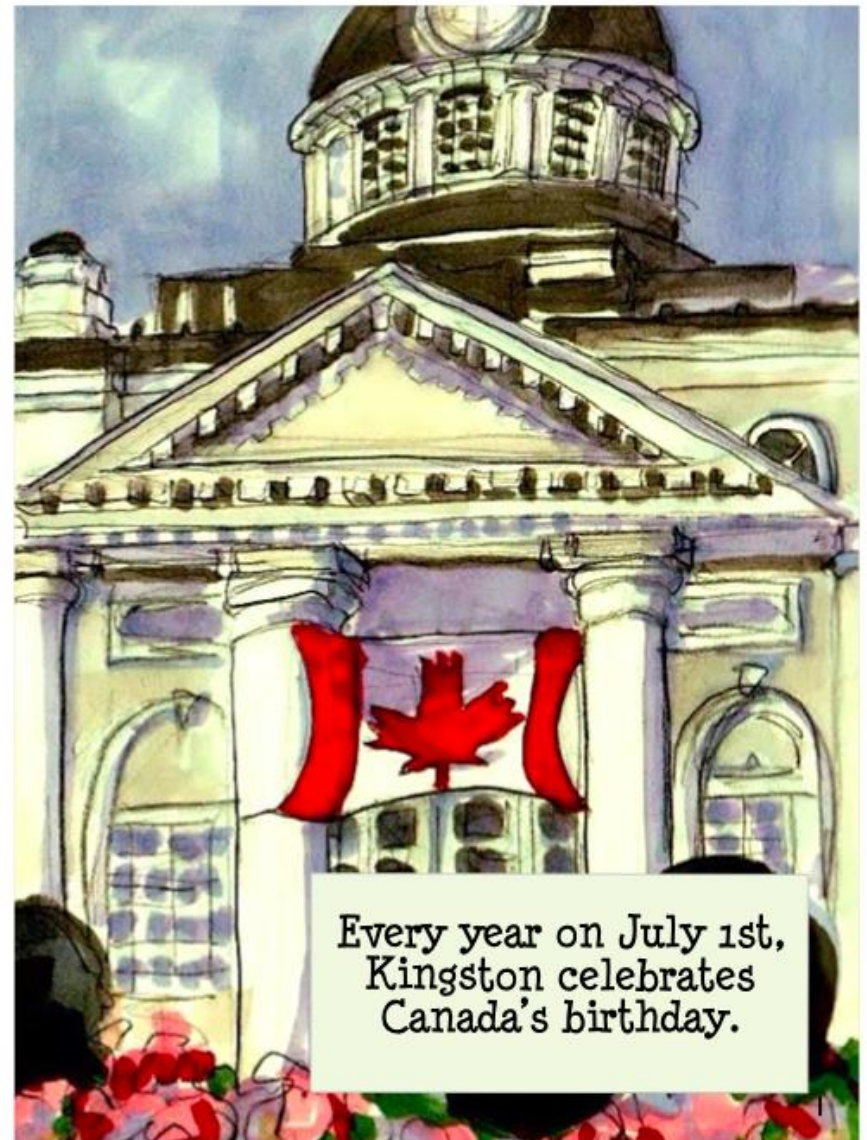

In October 2008 she began posting illustrations and sketches on her blog "Everdello" just for fun.

Recently she was invited by gallery owner David Dossett to show her work at Martello Alley.

With his encouragement she created the Kingston-themed Everdello Colouring Book and this series of small books featuring her sketches.

Find Jo online at everdello.wordpress.com

Canada Day in Kingston: A Little Book by Everdello, by Joanne Stanbridge. Kingston, ON : Dello Press, 2019.

Every year on July 1st,
Kingston celebrates Canada's birthday.

In the morning there is a big parade.

It ends at City Hall.

Our town crier
welcomes everyone
in a loud voice.

(He was voted the best
town crier in the world.
Seriously!)

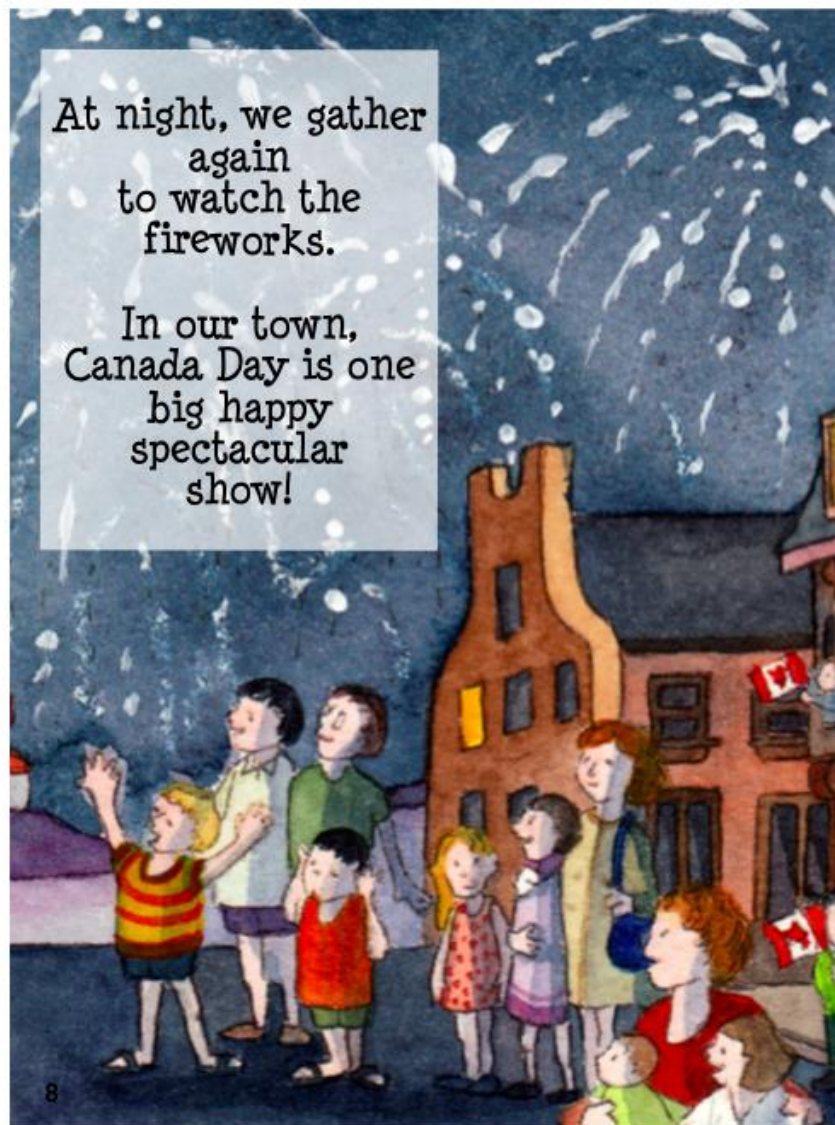

After the speeches,
everyone hangs out in Confederation Park.

We listen to bands,
watch the boats on the lake,
eat ice cream
and visit with friends.

The whole world is welcome to join us.
Please come, if you can!

At night, we gather
again
to watch the fireworks.

In our town,
Canada Day is one big happy
spectacular show!

KINGSTON

The beautiful city of Kingston, Ontario, Canada is situated on the north shore of Lake Ontario
about half-way between Toronto and Montreal.
Canada Day marks the occasion of Confederation, on July 1, 1867, when three separate provinces officially joined to become the country of Canada.

everdello.wordpress.com

See more at Martello Alley!

Sketches of Kingston by local artist
Joanne Stanbridge

everdello.wordpress.com